

The Chinese Exclusion Act, 1882

Introduction

Signed into law on May 6, 1882, the Chinese Exclusion Act barred most Chinese immigration to the United States by placing a 10-year ban on the entry of Chinese laborers. Chinese merchants, diplomats, scholars, and students were exempt from the ban. However, the law required them to obtain certification from the Chinese government before emigrating, which created a new barrier to entry into the country. The act also prohibited Chinese immigrants and their US-born children already living in the United States from becoming citizens, thus excluding them from the electorate.

In 1892, the ban was extended for another ten years, and in 1902 it was extended indefinitely. Congress repealed the Chinese Exclusion Act in 1943. However, the race-based quota system established by the 1924 National Origins Act greatly limited immigration from countries outside of northern and western Europe. In effect, only 105 people of Chinese ancestry were permitted entry to the US each year. It was only in 1965, with the passage of the Immigration and Nationality Act, also known as the Hart-Celler Act, that immigration quotas were eliminated, and Chinese were permitted to immigrate in the same numbers as people from other countries.

The Chinese Exclusion Act was the nation's first race-based immigration law. It was also the most restrictive immigration act to that date. While the act created unprecedented restrictions and paved the way for further discrimination in immigration law, Chinese immigrants impacted by the act did not passively accept discrimination. Some challenged it through the court system, while others found ways to circumvent it. Between 1882 and 1905, more than 10,000 lawsuits relating to Chinese immigration and civil rights were filed, including the landmark Supreme Court case United States v. Wong Kim Ark (1898), which ensured that Chinese born in the United States were guaranteed citizenship through the American citizenship clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. The "paper son" system, in which young Chinese men tried to gain entry using purchased identity papers that falsely claimed they were the sons of US citizens, became a common method of bypassing the restrictions.

Questions for Discussion

Answer the following questions based on the introduction above, the excerpt from the document, and your knowledge of American history.

1. Why were people of Chinese ancestry only admitted into the United States in very small numbers immediately following the repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act?
2. How does the Chinese Exclusion Act define "Chinese laborer"?
3. At the time of the Chinese Exclusion Act's passage, racist depictions of Chinese laborers were circulated by nativist groups and publications. What sources would you consult to learn about the nativist movement's origins and impact on immigration law?

An Act to execute certain treaty stipulations relating to Chinese.

Whereas in the opinion of the Government of the United States the coming of Chinese laborers to this country endangers the good order of certain localities within the territory thereof: Therefore,

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the expiration of ninety days next after the passage of this act, and until the expiration of ten years next after the passage of this act, the coming of Chinese laborers to the United States be, and the same is hereby, suspended; and during such suspension it shall not be lawful for any Chinese laborer to come, or having so come after the expiration of said ninety days to remain within the United States.

SEC. 2. That the master of any vessel who shall knowingly bring within the United States on such vessel, and land or permit to be landed, any Chinese laborer, from any foreign port or place, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars for each and every such Chinese laborer so brought, and maybe also imprisoned for a term not exceeding one year.

SEC. 3. That the two foregoing sections shall not apply to Chinese laborers who were in the United States on the seventeenth day of November, eighteen hundred and eighty, or who shall have come into the same before the expiration of ninety days next after the passage of this act, and who shall produce to such master before going on board such vessel, and shall produce to the collector of the port in the United States at which such vessel shall arrive, the evidence hereinafter in this act required of his being one of the laborers in this section mentioned; nor shall the two foregoing sections apply to the case of any master whose vessel, being bound to a port not within the United States, shall come within the jurisdiction of the United States by reason of being in distress or in stress of weather, or touching at any port of the United States on its voyage to any foreign port or place: Provided, That all Chinese laborers brought on such vessel shall depart with the vessel on leaving port.

SEC. 4. That for the purpose of properly identifying Chinese laborers who were in the United States on the seventeenth day of November eighteen hundred and eighty, or who shall have come into the same before the expiration of ninety days next after the passage of this act, and in order to furnish them with the proper evidence of their right to go from and come to the United States of their free will and accord, as provided by the treaty between the United States
